Counselor Corner- November 2017

Gratitude is letting others know you see how they have helped you.

November is a great month to remember all the things you and your family are grateful for this year. Tell others how much you appreciate what they do for you.

We have Veterans Day to say thank you for our service people who fought for our freedom. We have first responders that are there when we have emergencies. We had FEMA and other agencies available to help us through hurricanes and flooding. We have teachers and staff that are helping your children every day to grow in their academics and grow as people. Here is a gratitude jar activity for November. Have your family members put ideas in the jar every day and at Thanksgiving dinner read the things that everyone wrote down. My family has done this for years. It is so fun to remember what family members wrote years ago. A little gratitude goes a long way... so try it!

Create a Gratitude Jar

A gratitude jar is a great way for everyone to be able to have a voice. As part of your morning/night time routine, have family members write down one thing that they are grateful for that day. Then, at Thanksgiving dinner, pass the jar around the table and have everyone take turns closing their eyes and picking random notes from the jar to read aloud.

You are making a difference! Ms. Lori Wallace, MA, School Counselor
